

Call for papers

Les Décembrettes, an international conference on morphology, takes place every two years at the end of the first week of December. Organized since 2002 by the research group CLLE-ERSS (CNRS & Université de Toulouse), it brings together students and researchers in morphology from around the world. Open to all topics involving the morphology of the languages of the world and to all theoretical approaches, Les Décembrettes provide a high level scientific forum to present results and discuss data and analysis in a collegial atmosphere. The talks and posters presented at the conference undergo a rigorous and fully transparent selection process.

The 8th Décembrettes will be held in Bordeaux on December 6-7, 2012. In addition to two invited talks, the conference will include selected talks and posters. The presentations can be given in English or French.

The organizers invite submissions for original, 20-minute talks on all aspects of morphology, including interfaces with other fields. Possible topics include:

- inflexion and derivation
- construction and organization of the lexicon
- typological, diachronic and sociolinguistic approaches
- psycholinguistic, cognitive and developmental approaches
- interfaces with phonology, syntax and semantics
- etc.

Criteria for selection

Submissions will be reviewed by at least three experts in the field. The following criteria will be applied:

1. Importance and originality of the contribution
2. Scientific and technical content
3. Critical discussion of results, within the context of other work in the field
4. Organization of content and clarity of writing
5. Compatibility with the topics of the conference

The proceedings will be published online.
